Speaker: Frank A. Gleason, Colonel U.S. Army (Ret)

Subject: “The Capture of the U-505 Submarine”

Mission Statement

We, who by our own actions, and by our heritage, know that liberty has not, is not, nor ever will be free, do in association with our friends and comrades, who believe as we do, pledge that we will meet at the call of our Commander no less than ten times a year:

- * To hear of the war experiences of our members and invited guests
- * To encourage and demonstrate pride in our country and its armed forces
- * To pass on to posterity our knowledge of World War II, and of the price - human and material - that was paid by our nation for the preservation of liberty in the United States and the world

Speaker for January 21st, 2009–Col. Frank A. Gleason (Ret) - (To Be Introduced By Deputy Commander Goulding)

Many Round Table members will recall Colonel Gleason’s previous presentation to the Round Table in November 1996 when he talked to us about China-WW II. At that period in the war, Frank was working with the OSS and involved with guerilla warfare and industrial sabotage. While in China he was responsible for extensive ‘delay’ demolitions during the last Japanese offensive in Southeast China in late 1944. These operations were the source of a novel, “The Mountain Road” by Theodore White, which was followed by a movie starring Jimmy Stewart. Frank became a Technical Advisor on the movie.

Colonel Gleason entered the Army in 1942 as a Second Lieutenant in the Corps of Engineers after graduating from Penn State with a BS Degree in Chemical Engineering in 1941. After the war he earned a M.S. in Civil Engineering from Harvard University in 1949. His military career spans 29 ½ years of service stretching from WW II To Vietnam. During WW II he served primarily with the Office of Strategic Services (OSS) in the USA, England, India and China.

In this month’s presentation, Col. Gleason will focus on the capture of the German Submarine U-505. Many of you may remember the capture of this sub on 4 June 1944, by a hunter-killer group of the US Navy off the coast of Rio De Oro, Africa. Task Group 22.3 forced the sub to the surface by an extreme depth charge attack. The Task Group commanded by Captain Daniel V. Gallery, USN, and comprised Gallery’s escort aircraft carrier USS Guadalcanal (CVE-60), and five destroyer escorts under Commander Frederick S. Hall, USN: Pillsbury (DE-133), Pope (DE-134), Flaherty (DE-135), Chatelain (DE-149), and Jenks (DE-665). It should be noted that the capture of the U-505 was the first enemy ship captured by the U.S. Navy since the War of 1812.

Please welcome Col. Frank Gleason (USA) (Ret) as our January 21st, 2010 speaker. (235th Meeting)

Review of December 17th, 2009 Speaker – Hebert Benario (Introduced by Deputy Commander Goulding)

Our December speaker, Herbert W. Benario was a professor of classics at Emory University until 1987. He has a B.A. from the City College of New York, 1948; an M.A. from Columbia University, 1949; and completed his Doctorate in Classics under Professor Henry Rowell at Johns Hopkins University, 1951. He was a past president of the Classical Association of the Middle West and South. After completing his Ph.D he was drafted into the Army and sent to the U.S. Chemical Warfare Center and School at Ft. McClellan, AL which, needless to say, provided him with a cultural shock since he had never been below the Mason-Dixon line having been born and raised in the north.

Herbert’s presentation focused on four (4) intelligence classicists that helped win the war. These were men and woman, who General Omar Bradley called “ uniquely qualified reservists”, among whom were largely academic who were specialists in languages, others were medievalists and academic specialists trained in German or Japanese psychological analysis. These academics were particularly important, and among them classicists who played a very significant role in shaping Allied Commander's decisions during the war.

Professor Benario gave us insights into four of these classicists, some he knew personally as colleges and students: Eric Birley, Gilbert Highet, Moses Hadas and Henry Rowell. These academics provided the allies with intelligence analysis ranging from the structure of the German Army, psychological and character profiles of prominent enemy leaders, cultural analysis and how the Axis cultures influenced enemy Command decisions. All the academia's were experts in their fields and served the Allied cause well, providing intelligence information which was unavailable through any other source, and certainly proving that the study of classics can be very useful in times of war.

Thank you Professor Emeritus Herbert W. Benario for a job well done.

I am pleased to announce that we have two (2) new members who have joined us since the December 17th, 2009 meeting:
Stephen D. Morrison – Steve served in the U.S. Coast Guard from July 1945 to May 1946. After completing Boot Camp in Curtis Bay, MD he served in various clerical positions in Philadelphia, PA., Washington, D.C., and Savannah (Cockspur), Georgia.
Jerry Newton – Jerry retired from Hewlett Packard and now supports veterans through organizations like Salute America, Inc. His interest in WW II ranges from Airborne Units, D-Day, The Battle of the Bulge, and Navy operations in the Pacific.
Please welcome Steve and Jerry as new members of the Round Table at our January 21st, 2010 meeting.

>>> Upcoming Speakers for - 2010 - Program chairman John Davis and program co-chairman Bill Owens have done a splendid job in lining up a wonderful list of speakers for the Atlanta WW II Round Table for our September 2009 through June 2010 meetings. Monthly Quotation:

“In the end the Party would announce that two and two made five, and you would have to believe it. It was inevitable that they should make that claim sooner or later: the logic of their position demanded it. Not merely the validity of experience, but the very existence of external reality, was tacitly denied by their philosophy. The heresy of heresies was common sense.”
George Orwell, “1984”
